

IGA FOR SOLIDS AND STRUCTURES

ALESSANDRO REALI¹, RENE DE BORST², LAURA DE LORENZIS³, AND THOMAS ELGUEDJ⁴

¹University of Pavia alessandro.reali@unipv.it

²University of Sheffield
r.deborst@sheffield.ac.uk

³ETH Zurich
ldelorenzis@ethz.ch

⁴INSA Lyon
thomas.elguedj@insa-lyon.fr

ABSTRACT

From the beginning, isogeometric analysis has been successfully applied to the discretization of a wide range of problems in solid and structural mechanics. This minisymposium provides a platform for exchanging novel and innovative research in this area, including new method developments and applications in continuum solid mechanics, structural mechanics, contact, damage and fracture, and coupled problems.